Sales Clerk: Good afternoon, guys. Welcome to Pol's bookstore. How can I help you?

Harry: Hey! How you doing? We're looking for some science fiction books.

Sales Clerk: Are you looking for a specific title?

Harry: That one, Starship Troopers, by Robert Anson Heinlein. How much is it?

Sales Clerk: It's 15 dollars.

Harry: Oops... It's quite expensive.

Sales Clerk: Why don't you take a look at that shelf? There are lots of books on sale, starting from
Only three dollars.

Camille: Three dollars! Wow! What a bargain! Come on, Harry! Let's see what we can find.

Sale Clerk: And, if you buy three books, you get one for free.

Harry: Hey Camille, why don't we buy the three books together? I pay two and you pay one.

Camille: But, who is going to keep the free book?

Harry: We can share it.

Camille: Okay, deal!

Sales Clerk: What about I, Robot? It's one of our best sellers.

Harry: Sounds good. What's the price?

Sales Clerk: Five dollars.

Harry: Very good! I'll take it.

Camille: And, I'll buy this one, Found.

Harry: Who's the author?

Camille: Margaret Peterson Haddix. She has written more than 30 books for children

Harry: Oh! I see. Hey! What about this one?

Camille: The Martian Chronicles? Are you serious?

Harry: Okay I'll take this one by Isaac Asimov. The Bicentennial Man and Other Stories.

Camille: Excellent choice!

Sales Clerk: Anything else?

Harry: That will be all, thank you.

Sales Clerk: All right. Your total is 14 dollars.

Harry: Here you are. Thank you so much. Goodbye.
